How to write an outline?

- The topic of the research often determines the outline. Often school and college researches take five paragraphs
- Decide the topic. Oftentimes the topics are given to students essay writing service and if the topic is not given to you then decide the topic that is of interest to you and you have prior know-how about it.
- Collect database i.e. notes, references, other resources
- Carry out preliminary research or investigation
- Make your outline using full sentences or alpha-numeric.
- Use parallel structures by using the same type of words, verbs, nouns at the beginning of each sentence
- Always think in terms of a five-paragraph essay even if it is lengthy that contains an introduction, body, and conclusion. I used to write my essay on this method to create a well-structured essay.
- Create an interesting introductory paragraph that introduces your topic in an engaging manner. This is the second important part of the thesis statement.
- Add ideas, supporting details i.e. quotations, citations
- At the end of the thesis statement includes your thesis statement
- Now, outline the paragraphs followed by the supporting details. Introduce the paragraph with a topic sentence and complementary evidence
- Lastly, write the conclusion by restating the thesis of your paper and a few sentences that summarize the overall research. End this part with future research suggestions or a declarative sentence.

Examples of outlines;

A research assignment of five pages would be written as:

1. Introduction
2. Sentence that introduces the topic
3. Supporting material i.e. sentence, citation, quotation
4. Supporting material i.e. sentence, citation, quotation
5. Thesis Statement
6. Body Paragraph I
7. Topic sentence that addresses the first point of the thesis statement
8. Supporting sentence to the topic sentence 1 or a quote with explanation
9. Supporting sentence 2 to the topic sentence 1 or quotation with explanation
10. Supporting sentence 3 to the topic sentence 1 or a quote with an explanation
11. Body Paragraph II and Body Paragraph III

Both these paragraphs repeat what is done in the case of paragraph one. One topic sentence that paper writing service addresses the second and third points of the thesis statement and three supporting paragraphs or quotations with explanations.

4. Conclusion
